Follow-up Session: Thursday 28 July 2022

As AFA Scotland is currently delivering all workshops online there will be two dates for your diary; the first is the substantive workshop and the second is a follow-up session which focuses on specific areas that the group raise on the day. We have found this model of delivery allows for a more complete and reflective approach to training and attending both will maximise your learning opportunity.

THEME

It will now be a year since legislation changed and we began to examine our practice in relation to Brothers and Sisters remaining together and connected. This workshop will explore the legislation one year on, how we have adapted and offer an opportunity to explore evidence informed best practice in assessing and making together and apart decisions.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

This workshop will enable you to:

- Understand changes to the legal context around brothers and sisters.
- Consider what research tells us about sibling relationships and inform the decisions you make.
- Discuss how you assess and make decisions when placing siblings in your agency.
- Consider CoramBAAF Sibling Assessment Tools and how you can use these in practice.
- Consider the dilemmas you face in practice when making assessments.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This workshop will be relevant for children's social workers, family placement social workers and managers safeguarders, children's hearing panel members and adoption and fostering panel members.
